WHAT'S NEW?

A farewell to 2022.

SUMMARY

As the December month brought about exam times and summer holidays, we say goodbye to a prosperous year.

Throughout the year, we have helped the blind society write their very first story, a deaf school produce their own films, and gave blind students the chance to produce their own podcasts, and a blind student started her own talk show! The collaboration between SSC Diamond Mining and BonRo Social Development has been a rewarding project, with the disabled communities saying how grateful they have been to be apart of this journey with us.

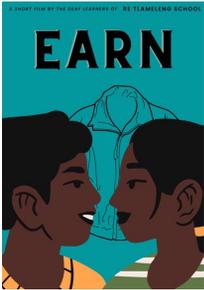

Our Film Club has released four short films.
Our Podcast students released two audio stories.
A blind student started her own talk show.
And our latest project, the Blind Club, is releasing their first novel in the early new year.

With such outstanding work so far, we look forward to the next year of our collaboration!

Our Projects

The Film Club

Producing four films with tight deadlines, the deaf students of Re Tlameleng Special School worked tirelessly on their projects, all of which carry a social message painted behind the canvas of storytelling.

The Blind Club

An eager set of storytellers wanted their voices heard, so as a holiday program, we opened up a writer's workshop. Our members learned to tell stories effectively, and their first book will be releases in February 2023!

upcoming novel.

Charity Projects

During the summer holidays, most of our students from Re Tlameleng Special School were writing their end year exams, and our Blind Club closed for the Christmas holidays. So, we hosted a few events during the holiday season.

The Music Video

One of our blind students has a passion for music, and aims to be a performer in the future. So we helped create a music video for one of his songs. Unfortunately, due to a copyright issue, we were unable to complete the project, but post-production will resume in the new year, with a new soundtrack. Here is what our day of shooting looked like.

Photography Day

An eager student showed a keen interest in photography, so we set up a day where we took pictures at the military base.
